P-J Villa Question DEquillibre

Description:
A fresh, modern take on Viognier from Hugo and Pauline Villa, the children of Rhône producer Pierre-Jean Villa. Sourced from light schist and gneiss soils over a granite base, the wine aims for the fragrant character of Viognier without the heaviness or overtly oily texture it can sometimes have. It is made with whole-bunch pressing and spends time on its fine lees, with part of the wine aged in demi-muids. Peach, apricot and citrus fruit sit alongside floral notes and a lively, almost saline finish.

Tasting notes:
Apricot, peach, nectarine, lemon, orange blossom, fresh herbs, saline finish

Allergens:
Contains sulphites.

Dish Pairing:
- Thai green curry
- Grilled prawns
- Roast chicken with lemon and herbs
- Spiced vegetable dishes

Talking Point:
Question d'Équilibre is part of the first range made by Hugo and Pauline Villa, who began producing their own wines alongside their father Pierre-Jean from the early 2020s. They work organically and focus on wines that are fresh and approachable rather than simply trying to make miniature versions of their father's top Rhône wines. The name is a good description of the idea behind this Viognier: keeping the grape's naturally perfumed, peachy character while retaining enough acidity and freshness to stop it becoming heavy.
