ChatGPT said:

Description:

Quinta da Fonte Florão Branco is a fresh and lively white wine from the Dão region of Portugal. Crafted by the historic Quinta da Fonte in the foothills of Serra da Estrela, it's a blend featuring Encruzado alongside indigenous Portuguese varieties, offering both brightness and complexity.

Tasting notes:

Aromas of green apple, citrus blossom, and white peach with subtle hints of honeyed almond. The palate is medium-bodied, crisp and elegant, showing vibrant acidity, fresh orchard fruit, and a gently textured, mineral finish.

Allergens: Contains sulphites.

Dish Pairing:

- Grilled seabass or cod
- Soft goat's cheese
- Chicken with lemon-herb seasoning
- Seafood risotto
- Light tapas such as marinated olives and garlic prawns

Talking Point:

Fonte da Fonte farms biodynamically in granite-rich soils at altitude, which helps preserve natural acidity and mineral purity. Their Branco blend emphasises Encruzado's structure and ageing potential—a nod to Dão's increasingly respected white-wine credentials.
