De Bortoli Regional Reserve Chardonnay

Description:

A well-balanced Australian Chardonnay from De Bortoli, offering plenty of ripe fruit without becoming too heavy. The Regional Reserve range is designed to show the character of the fruit, with a little winemaking influence adding texture and complexity. Expect a generous mix of citrus and stone fruit, balanced by fresh acidity and gentle creamy notes. An easy-going, versatile Chardonnay that works just as well on its own as it does alongside food.

Tasting notes:
Peach, lemon, ripe apple, melon, vanilla, light toast, creamy texture

Allergens:
Contains sulphites.

Dish Pairing:

- Roast chicken
- Fish pie
- Grilled prawns
- Creamy pasta with mushrooms

Talking Point:

De Bortoli is one of Australia's best-known family-owned wine companies. It was founded by Vittorio and Giuseppina De Bortoli, who arrived from Italy in the 1920s and established the family winery in the Riverina region of New South Wales. Today, the business is still family-run, with the third and fourth generations involved. The Regional Reserve range offers an accessible introduction to the winery's broader portfolio.
